VOIDCRITTERS AND BATTLESTATIONS

In The Sims 4 Kids Room Stuff Pack, children are able to collect and trade their favorite Voidcritter cards. These new collectibles allow children to battle together on the new Voidcritter Battle Station object, and also count towards the new Voidcritter collection.

COLLECTING VOIDCRITTERS

Voidcritter cards are found inside booster packs which contain common, uncommon, and rare Voidcritter cards. All cards have a +3 Playful emotional aura. To begin their collection, Sims are able to look for and collect Voidcritter cards in many different places. The following methods are available for finding booster packs:

• Look for Discarded Toys - The Sims 4 Kids Room includes a brand new “Look for Discarded Toys” interaction for children. Using this interaction allows children to look in trash cans and logs for discarded toys. When performing this action, there's a good chance children will find one of the Voidcritter booster packs and random toys. The trash can interaction has a cool down period of 8 hours.
• Trading - Children can use the all new “Ask to Trade Voidcritters” interaction to trade cards with other children. This prompts a pop up that allows you to choose which card to trade, along with a notification informing you of which Voidcritter your Sim received in exchange. Trading is the best way to remove duplicates from your inventory, but it can only be used on Sims outside the household.

• Ordering from the Computer - Adults and Children can both access the computer to Order Voidcritter Booster Packs. You can purchase one booster pack for $25 Simoleans, or a five pack for $125 Simoleans. Booster packs will be placed in a Sim’s inventory where they will have the option to open and reveal the contents.

When Sims find a Voidcritter, a notification will pop up giving them information about the creature’s lore and episodic history. Likewise, this information can be seen again by clicking the Read Card interaction on the card. Sims will find a variety of common, uncommon and even extremely rare Limited Edition Foil cards during the collection process.

Voidcritter cards can be sold by using the “Sell” panel in a Sim’s inventory. The value of cards is determined by rarity. Common Cards are worth $5, Uncommon Cards are worth $15, and Rare Cards are worth $55. Limited Edition Foil cards do not yield a higher value.
Voidcritter cards are also available in buydebug mode as individual, unpackaged cards. Voidcritter cards that are spawned using the debug method must be placed in a Sim’s inventory to count towards the collection.

Collecting all of the Voidcritter cards will result in a completed Voidcritter collection, and the Elemental Egalitarian Plaque will be sent to your household through the mail.

<td>The Avesu, or Gem Snatching bird, lives high in the mountains on its home world. The species struggled to adjust to sea level conditions after its appearance in our world. As it became acclimated to highly populated areas, it developed an attraction to shiny objects and precious stones. Episode 5 saw Leif’s rich uncle Mervin attacked by an Avesu, which was particularly charmed by his bedazzled cuff links. Subsequently, Leif and his friends tracked the bird to its nest where they discovered the Avesu had adapted to use the gemstones to protect their eggs from predators.</td>

A heartfelt moment in episode 10 brought the species to prominence. Leif’s classmate Ellie used her Meduso to defeat an aggressive Dicoatl, then sympathetically offered to take the critter under her figurative wing. Since then the two have been inseparable, with Ellie often seen teaching it dogfight maneuvers in the local park.</td>

| !Medus | Medus - Wind - Common - $5 | The gelatinous texture of Medus's body can be deceptive. Its amorphous shape is as weightless as the feathers that adorn its head, giving it the ability to drift through the air and avoid danger. While often mistaken as a mouth, the cavity in its face is in fact an enlarged nostril, giving it a predilection to track down the source of intensely fragrant smells.
Episode 20 saw a flock of Medusos latch themselves onto a perfume saleswoman, causing chaos at the local mall. Leif cleverly helped lure the Medusos away with the scent of succulent meat when he fired up the grill in a nearby park. |
| !Nimbus | Nimbus - Wind - Uncommon - $15 | Often found resting high above the ground on a self-made cloud, Nimbus bend gardens of their own creation by supplying them with daily rain.
A Nimbus first clashed with Sims in episode 15. One Nimbus created an impeccable garden on the outskirts of Leif's hometown, but several teens playing hooky rashly decided to vandalize the carefully cultivated land. The Nimbus responded in kind, harassing the teens daily with thunder, lightning, and hail. Leif was eventually able to convince them to return to the scene and till the soil so that the land could grow once again. |
| !Nymphe | Nymphe - Earth - Common - $5 | These helpless looking critters mimic the budding plants that share their forest home. Generally slow moving and lacking extremities to defend themselves, Nympheae prefer to use their pollen to charm others into protecting their groves. When under extreme duress, they're known to produce fungal spores that invade animal hosts and allow them to propagate their species in a safer environment.
Episode 19 dealt with several Nympheae that took over a flower shop and started reproducing at an alarming rate. It took all of Leif's ingenuity to free his friends from their hypnotizing pollen and relocate them to a remote nature preserve. |

<td>Encased in living stone that it can shape at will, ancient Mythemes are thought to have created the Vodcritter's lands and islands in millennia past. Despite their slow pace, their absolute command of the elements makes them a difficult foe in battle. Leif's friend Barry had a near death experience in episode 4, when a parkour mishap at a construction site caused a section of scaffolding to give way. A powerful Mytheme happened to be nearby, and it rapidly shifted a pile of gravel to brace the collapsing structure, giving Barry just enough time to scramble to safety. Indebted, Barry swore an oath to protect and battle alongside all Mythemes.</td>

<td>Suintor - Earth - Rare - $55</td>
<td>With a keen ability to sniff out metals buried deep in the earth, Suintors build their homes out of the rocks and soil they dig through to find their food. Unlike the ivory tusks of our planet's boars, a Suintor's tusks are made from lonsdaleite. This has led scientists to hypothesize that their home planet was ravaged by meteorite impacts during the time when Suintors evolved to take their current form. When a Suintor found its way into Leif's town in episode 9, it built its home on the median of a busy street to stop the delish meals that it observed passing by at high speeds. Leif took pity on the confused critter and convinced it that vehicles are not good sources of food, saving it from a fate of being hunted by insurance adjusters.</td>

<td>At home in landscapes littered with cylindrical rock formations, Simgaia traversed their unique biome by swinging from pillar to pillar using the vines of plants that hung from outcroppings. Such behavior reinforced the musculature in their front limbs, causing them to pack quite the punch. Episode 14 focused on a troop of Simgaia attempting to settle amongst a block of high-rise apartments, using electrical cables they’d ripped from poles to swing to and fro. After causing a massive power outage, Leif was able to coax them to the outskirts of town where they would be less disruptive.</td>

This naturally destructive power makes it an outcast amongst other species, despite its naturally pleasant disposition. Canis are left to wander lands recently ravaged by forest fires in an attempt to not be run off by those fearing an uncontrolled burn. In episode 8, Leif races against time to put out fires started by an out of control Canis. The fear of suddenly appearing in another world caused the normally peaceful Canis to rampage through the town, creating a crisis for a municipality with no local fire department.</td>

| !Cyprin Image | Cyprin - Fire - Uncommon - $15 | Floating along in air currents produced by its own body warmth, Cyprin live near the mouths of active volcanos. While Cyprin’s outward appearance is fishlike in nature, its tails and fins are actually flames it manipulates to help propel itself.
When they warped into existence in Leif’s hometown in episode 13, Cyprin interrupted a county fair by warming themselves over grills at the various food stands. While they were immediately shooed away due to health codes regarding food preparation, they found themselves at home in the tent of a traveling fire eater who was performing at the fair. |
| !Fissure Image | Fissure - Fire - Uncommon - $15 | Born from volcanoes, Fissures burst forth from the ground when they reach adulthood after eating their way through the planetary crust. They’re known to form a symbiotic relationship with Cyprins that act as their eyes and ears, in return for enabling Cyprins to survive in regions that lack magmatic activity.
In episode 18, Leif tripped over a Fissure that had entered a dormant state due to a lack of sufficient heat to keep its body molten. He was able to help the creature by convincing a local smelter to let it bathe in her furnace during work hours. |
| !Wisp Image | Wisp - Void - Common - $5 | Drawn to the gloomy like a moth to a flame, Wisps feed on negative emotions. These tiny critters have a ravenous appetite, but have found this planet full of emotional Sims to be quite hospitable. They possess the ability to phase in and out of our visible dimensions, and Sims who find their mood inexplicably improving are often unwittingly serving as hosts to a hungry Wisp.
In episode 6, Leif first encountered Wisps when a trio of them attached themselves to a classmate. He initially tried to ward them off, only to realize their presence was actively helping his classmate’s mood improve. |

LIMITED EDITION FOIL CARDS

Limited Edition Foil Voidcritter Cards are a rare type of card Sims can collect. Beyond a few cosmetic differences, and the fact that they are much harder to find, foil cards act the same as the regular Voidcritter cards. They also count toward the Voidcritter Card Collection.

Nymphaea Voidcritter. Limited Edition Foil card to the left, regular card to the right.

BATTLESTATIONS

The Voidcritter Battle Station can be purchased in the “Kids Activities” section of Build/Buy mode for $675 Simoleans. Child Sims are the only Sims who can use the battle station, but Teens and Adults can watch and cheer along. Children have the following two interactions available to them:

- Train Voidcritter - Battle against Freezer Bunny in a solo battle to train your cards and raise their Power Level.

- Battle Voidcritter Against - Select another child Sim to battle against one of the random cards in their inventory.
Voidcritters with higher Power Levels and elemental advantages are more likely to win the battles. The maximum Power Level for any Voidcritter card is 10, and is only affected by the amount of training and battle experiences the Voidcritter has had. Voidcritter cards will all start at level 1, gaining power faster at lower levels and slower at higher levels.

Elements play an important part in battle and can determine the winner. Elements are revealed when hovering your mouse over the card. The following list determines which elements have a better chance of winning over the other. The strengths are as follows:

- Water is strong against Fire
- Earth is strong against Wind
- Void is strong against Water
- Fire is strong against Earth
- Wind is strong against Void
NEW GAMEPLAY - CONTINUED

Battles are filled with many elemental animations that emphasize the child’s imagination. These animations are only visible when controlling a Child Sim as adult Sims cannot see anything but the game in its original form.

- Use Testing cheats true and shift+click to set the card to Max Power Level.
- Cards can be dragged and dropped directly from your Sims’ inventory to any of the two Voidcritter Battle Station card slots.

WINNING AND LOSING BATTLES

Battle stations result in your Sim receiving one of five new moodlets. These moodlets are not stack-able, and will cancel out each other. For example: If your Sim receives the Got Rekt moodlet, then challenged their opponent to another battle and won, the Get Rekt moodlet would be replaced by the Voidcritter Victor.

- Voidcritter Victor - Happy +1 (4 Hours)
- GG - Happy +1 (2 Hours)
- Got Rekt - Angry +1 (4 Hours)
- Humbling Loss - Sad +1 (2 Hours)
- The Art of Battle - Focused +1 (2 Hours)
Puppet Theater

The Puppet Theater is a brand new interactive object for Children, and is found in buy mode for $855 Simoleons. The puppet theater includes the following interactions: Watch Puppet Show, Perform Puppet Show, and Perform Puppet Show For.

Children who use the puppet theater will increase their social skill when performing any of the five available shows. Children are able to perform two of the five shows right from the start, and will continue to unlock an additional three shows as they increase their Social Skill. The following Puppet Shows are available to Children when performing in the puppet theater:

- (Level 1 Social Skill) Search for the Notebook Snatcher
- (Level 1 Social Skill) The Creature of Granite Falls
- (Level 2 Social Skill) School Life
- (Level 4 Social Skill) Lost in the Woods
- (Level 6 Social Skill) My Pet Monster
Puppet performances result in Children receiving one of two new moodlets depending on the quality of the show. The higher a child’s social skill is, the better their performance will be. The following two moodlets are available for performing Sims:

- Nervous Nellie - Sad +1 (4 Hours)
- Broke a Leg - Happy +1 (4 Hours)

Audience members who watch a puppet theater performance can also receive one of three new moodlets depending on how well they believe the child performed. The following three moodlets are available for audience members:

- “A” For Effort - Happy +1 (4 Hours)
- Delightful Puppet Show - Happy +1 (4 Hours)
- Annoying Puppets - Angry +1 (4 Hours)

Sims who have the “Hates Children” trait tend to become annoyed when watching puppet shows!

<tr>
<td>The Not Binary Clock</td>
<td>$170</td>
<td>This clock does not use binary mathematics to tell the time, although it’d be pretty neat if it did. It makes up for it with a wild variety of patterns that are perfect for creating a room with a fun vibe.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>This Time It’s Srs Bookshelf</td>
<td>$300</td>
<td>Parents, it’s time to get serious. Commit to the education of your child, and the eradication of internet speak. This bookshelf is the answer. With twice the space for educational goodness compared to the “Take Me Srsly Bookshelf”, you’ll double your child’s potential to learn!</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Get ‘Em Young TV Stand</td>
<td>$180</td>
<td>Cultural norms mean that unlike your own childhood, a TV is now perfectly acceptable in a kid’s bedroom. You want to fit within cultural norms right? Better buy your kid a TV, pronto! The Get ‘Em Young TV stand will fully support your decision.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Take Me Srsly Bookshelf</td>
<td>$300</td>
<td>Parents, nothing says “serious” like a child committed to their studies. You no longer need to listen to their petulant demands to be heard by their elders. Stock this bookshelf chock full of educational materials to whip them into shape and cure their internet speak forever!</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DIY Paper Lanterns</td>
<td>$265</td>
<td>A fun (and practical) craft project for kids. This set of do it yourself lanterns comes with three basic shapes, and stretchable cloth in fun patterns. Mix, match, stretch, and hang... you’ll light the way to lovely room in no time!</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blastoff! Lighting</td>
<td>$130</td>
<td>This lamp has an incredibly unique feature... no power cord! So just how does it manage to cast light? A miniature micro-combustion rocket engine fires up every time the lamp is turned on! Of course, this does require that owners fill its tank with a thimble of gasoline every few weeks.</td>
